TR Vidcom announces Multi Plasma Panel Displays; the ultimate in large screen plasma technology

Australasian technology group TR Corporation has announced a range of new products they are introducing to their TR Vidcom brand's audiovisual portfolio, following major successes in the New Zealand market.

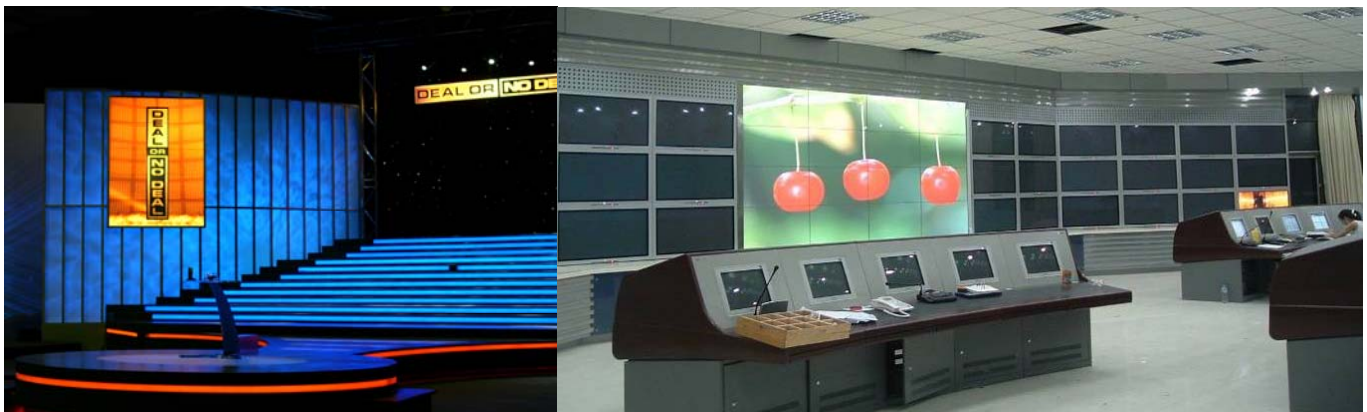

The latest product to be released this year represents the latest in plasma screen technology – The Multi Plasma Display Panel or MPDP.

Combining bright images with large screen technology, an MPDP is a great investment for those desiring large screen impact without the normally associated high running costs. Thus making it ideal for large hospitality, event or entertainment applications where budgets are often tight and expectations usually high.

Large panels are easily configured with a seamless plasma effect, as wide or as high as desired. Each individual screen is a slim line 42" panel, with a seam of less than 5mm and depth of just 76.5mm. The MPDP combines superior picture quality with space-minimising technology. Custom brackets are available to suit just about any mounting needs.

Applications for the MDPD include any requirement for clear, large screens, such as control room screens for call centers, emergency services, broadcast facilities, as well as the obvious event and entertainment applications. Waterproof options are available to suit outdoor installations; offering greater flexibility particularly in the event and hospitality sector.
